

Music At On Track Westbury

My name is Deej Dhariwal, and I have worked as a music practitioner for nearly 20 years. I'm a professional musician signed to a record label, with a band that has toured internationally and performed alongside well known artists. I have experience working on popular films, as well as producing records for other artists and my own projects.

I have been sharing my passion and knowledge for music at Ontrack for 8 years. In my sessions, I support young people with composition, songwriting, recording, and production, with a focus on building confidence, encouraging engagement, and developing their skills across various instruments.

As a music leader, I have led numerous projects and provided students with industry standard equipment to gain hands-on experience. Many have gone on to become musicians and pursue further study in music. I have worked with vulnerable young people, including those with special educational needs and disabilities (SEN/D), who are eager to develop as musicians.

My approach is person-centred, focusing on engaging young people in leading their own learning, while my role is to support and empower them to manage this confidently.
